Airport workers to file federal complaints

Philadelphia International Airport workers will on Monday gather at City Hall to announce the filing of federal complaints about unsafe working conditions.

Workers and advocates will urge the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the U.S. Department of Transportation to launch an investigation into alleged safety hazards, including exposure to bodily fluids, a lack of required training and potentially hazardous conditions for wheelchair operators and passengers. Skatepark slated to open Skateboarding paradise Paine's Park will open on May 22, more than a decade after the concept was suggested. Located on the banks of the Schuylkill River, the project, which was first drawn up in 2002, was initiated by Franklin's Paine Skatepark Fund. The park was created as a solution to the skaters who would patrol LOVE park.

Though skateboarding will be its central feature, the park will be a mixed-use public space with elements that will appeal to the general public, like granite and steel benches and views of the Schuylkill River and the Philadelphia Museum of Art. METRO

Lorenzo and Sons gears up for grand reopening

Feels like the first time. The pizza you know and love is back. This time, with toppings! But only on Tuesdays.

A new mural has been painted on Lorenzo and Sons Pizza. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER, METRO

For owner Joe Pulizzi, the fire that tore through Lorenzo and Sons Pizza last June did more than just destroy a Philadelphia landmark.

"Businesses you can rebuild," Pulizzi said. "But I was distraught because it was personal. I grew up here, making dough with my dad."

Pulizzi said 65 firefighters and emergency medical services personnel responded to the blaze June 27, 2012.

Now, almost a year later, Pulizzi and his staff are ready to continue serving slices to the masses.

With a fresh exterior boasting a new outdoor mural and a revamped interior, Lorenzo and Sons is poised to reclaim its position as one of the most popular eateries on South Street.

Quoted

"The reception has been awesome since our soft launch on Monday. There were lines out the door on that first day." Pulizzi

"The reception has been awesome since our soft launch on Monday," Pulizzi said.

"There were lines out the door on that first day."

And the popular pizza place will offer a first: toppings. However, they are only available on Tuesdays.

But aside from its new look, fans will be happy to know that much of Lorenzo and Sons remains the same.

"The taste hasn't changed, and we're still using the same ingredients," Pulizzi said.

Fifty percent of all proceeds from Lorenzo's Friday will be donated to Philabundance.

Eleven club dancers arrested

An undercover sting operation at an Allentown gentleman's club resulted in the arrest of 11 dancers for prostitution, reports say. Officials arrested the women Wednesday after raiding the club, Platinum Plus, after undercover agents were solicited for sex, reports say. The club remains open. The dancers were arraigned and released on $20,000 unsecured bail.

Council passes bill for ads on city property

The City Council passed a bill Thursday that would pave the way for advertisements to be added on municipal buildings and vehicles.

Council members OK'd zoning changes to allow advertisements on city-owned real estate.

Council President Darrell Clarke said he heard the city will send out requests for proposals next week.

"I got word, although informally, that there will be an RFP (request for proposal) going out within the next week or two for vehicles," Clarke said Thursday.

He said municipal vehicles would be the most lucrative opportunity for advertising.

"I would love to see these trash trucks with trash bag wraps on them," he said.

Mayor Michael Nutter still needs to give his blessing. The City Council has to authorize any contracts, "But at the end of the day it's up to the administration to implement that particular program," Clarke said.

Quoted

"I'd just like to see us get the RFP out, get the contract done and start bringing in some much needed revenue." Darrell Clarke Against calls that the council would delay implementation of the advertising program by passing the zoning bill Friday, Clarke said: "This is an administration that has delayed the program for a year and a half.

"So, it kind of speaks for itself."

Fraud. Pain clinic doctor, daughter face 236-year sentences

It took a jury less than two hours on Wednesday to convict a Philadelphia dentist and his daughter of criminal conspiracy, insurance fraud, and theft by deception and corrupt organizations for submitting fraudulent medical bills for procedures they performed at The Pain Center in Center City.

Dr. Owen Rogal, 72, and his daughter Kim Rogal, 51, face a sentence of up to 236 years in prison and a fine of nearly $500,000.

The Rogals were arrested in January 2011 after a 15-month investigation found the duo submitted nearly $5 million in fraudulent medical bills to 15 private insurance companies through The Pain Center between 2002 and 2011.

A grand jury concluded the Rogals were performing an intramuscular procedure to alleviate chronic pain, but charging insurance companies using a billing code for a delicate, high-risk and invasive procedure performed on the brain.

The Rogals are accused of pocketing more than $1 million of the fraudulent proceeds.

ALEX WIGGLESWORTH

Court claims

- The Rogals sought a minimum reimbursement of $4,800 for treatments that had a maximum value of $800.
- The duo will be sentenced June 13.
- They face a maximum 118- to 236-year sentence and fines.

Leaders. More people read Metro than any other local paper

If you are between the ages of 21 and 54, you are not alone in reading this article.

According to new figures from Scarborough Research, Metro is now the most read daily newspaper among adults aged 21-54 in Philadelphia.

And while your free daily keeps growing (we increased 4 percent last year, thank you!) our competition wishes they could say the same.

Scarborough reports the Daily News saw a 10 percent decline in readership last year while the Philadelphia Inquirer saw a whopping 23 percent decline.

Earlier this year, Metro unveiled a refreshed print design along with a relaunched website, www.metro.us.

A new sales director and city editor were also hired for Philadelphia. METRO

Police: H.S. student tried to flush baby

Police in Lancaster County have charged a 19-year-old high school student with concealing the death of a child after an infant was discovered in a trash can at her school Tuesday, according to a report from The Lancaster Intelligencer Journal.

Authorities allege the student gave birth in a school bathroom, then discarded the male newborn in a trash can after unsuccessfully attempting to flush him down a toilet. METRO

N Korea. US seeks amnesty for citizen jailed for 15 years

North Korea sentenced an American citizen to 15 years of hard labor for crimes against the state, prompting a U.S. call for amnesty in hopes of avoiding him becoming a bargaining chip between the two countries.

Kenneth Bae, 44, was born in South Korea but is a naturalized citizen. His sentencing comes after two months of saber-rattling that saw North Korea threaten the United States and South Korea with nuclear war.

Pyongyang has previously tried to use American prisoners as bargaining chips in talks with Washington. A U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Washington was not currently looking for an envoy to try to secure Bae's release, as it sometimes has done. REUTERS

Man dead after shots fired at Houston airport

A man died after shots were fired Thursday in a terminal at Houston airport, police said.

There were no other injuries or suspects involved in the shooting at Houston Intercontinental Airport, Houston Police spokeswoman Jodi Silva said.

Police said the man was shot near a ticket counter outside the security perimeter, and were looking into if he shot himself. REUTERS

Hundreds of Calif. homes threatened by brush fire

Blaze. The latest brush fires come at the start of what is forecast to be a devastating fire season for the state.

Residents watch as a wildfire approaches homes in Newbury Park, Calif. / GETTY IMAGES

A wind-driven brush fire raging northwest of Los Angeles prompted the evacuation of hundreds of homes and a university campus on Thursday as flames engulfed several recreational vehicles and crept toward housing subdivisions.

A second, smaller blaze some 80 miles to the east destroyed two homes and damaged two others before firefighters managed to quickly halt its spread.

The larger fire erupted about 6:30 a.m. local time beside the U.S. 101 freeway and consumed roughly 2,000 acres of dry, dense chaparral near the communities of Camarillo and Newbury Park, Ventura County fire department officials said.

Department spokesman Bill Nash said no injuries were reported.

But live footage broadcast by Los Angeles television station KTLA showed heavy smoke over the area and flames engulfing several recreational vehicles parked near the evacuation zone.

An entire residential subdivision called Dos Vientos, encompassing hundreds of homes, was placed under mandatory evacuation orders, Nash said.

Evacuations were also ordered for the California State University at Channel Islands campus, according to a bulletin posted on the fire department's website. REUTERS

Reward. Escaped 1973 killer of trooper joins FBI most-wanted list

Joanne Chesimard / GETTY IMAGES

Joanne Chesimard, the Black Liberation Army militant who fled prison for Cuba after being convicted of killing a New Jersey state trooper in 1973, was added to the FBI most-wanted terrorist list, and a reward was doubled to $2 million.

New Jersey is offering $1 million for information leading to Chesimard's capture, on top of an earlier $1 million reward from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, state Attorney General Jeffrey Chiesa said in a statement today, The 40th anniversary of the execution-style killing was Thursday. NRA to meet in Texas after blocking gun control

Tens of thousands of National Rifle Association members will gather in Houston this weekend for the first time since the Senate rejected a plan last month to expand background checks for gun buyers.

"We view it as an opening battle in what will be a multiyear war," said Andrew Arulanandam, a spokesman for the NRA. REUTERS

KIDS HAVE REASON TO DREAD DECISION DAY

Quoted

No more hemming or hawing. No more talk of a gap year. No more looking over the options like old folks staring at an IHOP menu. It was Decision Day. And for many, it was not easy.

If you have any high school seniors, please accept my sympathies. Sure, they were adorable when they were little, but like Great Dane puppies they grew up, and now they're hogging the sofa and eating everything in sight, am I right?

Still, we should not begrudge them. This past week marked the deadline for university-bound seniors to finally say where they intend to enroll. No more hemming or hawing. No more talk of a gap year. No more looking over the options like old folks staring at an IHOP menu. It was Decision Day. And for many, it was not easy.

First, because the number of college applications has shot up like Wayne LaPierre's blood pressure at a Brady campaign fish fry. Even for excellent students, breaking out of the pack has never been harder. I know one who showed a professor a 4.0 transcript, a whopping SAT and glowing references only to hear, "These are nice, but what else do you have?"

Second, because the schools have become so darn good at marketing. Glossy brochures burst out of mailboxes. Torrents of enticing emails pour into laptops. Go on a tour at any school with a bright-eyed co-ed gushing about the classes, the new basketball arena and the great tradition of throwing Dean Moresley into the pool (or putting a goat into the cafeteria, or running naked through the library) and by the time it is done you'll be begging to sign up, even if you're 50 and it seems kind of creepy.

And third, because colleges cost so much that many families must see the post-high school years as a kind of educational debtor's prison. It can be hard to commit your parents to that, even if they are urging you on.

In short, while college-bound kids are among the fortunate ones, the decision they grappled with this week was genuinely hard. So if they want to lounge on the sofa a bit, cut them some slack. The hard work of making that decision pay off will start soon enough.

Blipp this!

Tony Stark really doesn't have any superpowers himself, right? That means even YOU could be Iron Man. If you want to try on the Iron Man suit, Blipp the photo below with your mobile device, get a friend to take your picture and then you can say in a robotic voice, "I AM IRON MAN!"

STARK CONTRAST

Robert Downey Jr. bros down with the Iron Man suit in the series' third outing. Blipp here to read our review on your mobile device. / ZADE ROSENTHAL

Q&A

Do you think you can go on doing superhero movies forever?
I'm 48, and I'm torn about it. One part of me wants to stop right now, and another part of me doesn't want to let go. Let's just say that I hope to be able to decide what to do when the time comes. I don't want to be like those rock bands that continue going on tour when they're over 60 and looking like zombies.

Interview. Robert Downey Jr. plays a superhero who deals with panic attacks in "Iron Man 3."

Like Tony Stark, the character he's played in "The Avengers" and now three "Iron Man" films, Robert Downey Jr. was born again. Once a bad boy whose well-reported drug problems cost him work, he successfully got clean and began fulfilling the mile-high promise he always had. "Iron Man 3" reunites Downey, now 48, with his "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" filmmaker, Shane Black.

After the huge success of the first two "Iron Man" movies, followed by "The Avengers," were you even in the position to turn down this third episode?
I signed up for three movies, so I didn't have the choice! But I wanted to do it. I promise!

Did you have a say when it came to the evolution of your character?
Working on this kind of project, you're dealing with so many egos. A guy in a suit tells you, "This is the movie I want to make." And you're like, "Hang on a minute, what are you going on about?!" "Iron Man 3" is first and foremost director Shane Black's movie. He wrote the script together with Drew Pearce, another super talented guy. They spoke to all those involved for two weeks and then they disappeared. They came back two weeks later with a script that was 100 times better than what we had originally discussed. It was a surprise. Normally, with this kind of movie, you read the script and you think, "F—, how am I going to film this trash!" It's another kind of surprise.

HOW DOES BLIPPAR WORK?

1. Download the FREE Blippar app on your device.
2. 'Blipp' or scan the ad or content.
3. Live, interactive content is revealed on your device!

After "The Avengers," is it nice to go back to being the main character?
We absolutely wanted to come back to something more "real." I have to admit, I love arriving on set and seeing how huge it all is — with explosions and all. Only, when I go out and watch a movie, I'm a bit of a snob. The most important thing is the relationship between the characters. In "Iron Man 3," Tony has no armor and no Pepper [Potts, his assistant and love interest, played by Gwyneth Paltrow]. He really has to fight.

He also has to deal with his panic attacks. Is that a hard thing for you to do as an actor, considering he's also meant to be a superhero?
I love that kind of challenge. I remember reading it in the script: "Tony speaks to his computer and suddenly he has a panic attack." I was like, "What!? Him?!" It seems weird but that's who he is. Jon Favreau, who produced the first two episodes and who plays Happy Hogan in this one, has always said that this kind of movie is about normal people who can do incredible things with technology. It's the nasty guys that come from another planet.

Your career has had a lot of ups and downs. Do you take your job as seriously as you used to?
Honestly? You can take on two different attitudes when it comes to the way you deal with your life. You can try and control it. Or you can try and accept it. I think I worked harder than most people would have done on this kind of movie. I think I have a certain work ethic.

Like James Bond, do you think that Tony Stark/ Iron Man will eventually be played by someone else? Can you see that happening?
Yes, of course. No, no, it would be very unpleasant! Especially if the new guy is really good!

More to Blipp!

Wait, that's not Tony Stark!

In "Iron Man 3," Don Cheadle plays James "Rhodey" Rhodes, who suits up as Iron Man's government-sanctioned counterpart Iron Patriot. Will Cheadle's character ever get to be one of the Avengers? Blipp here to hear his answer.

Summer Movie Preview: May

Warmer weather means blockbuster season is upon us. Here are the films everyone at the water cooler will be discussing all summer.

'Star Trek Into Darkness'

(May 15)
What: Everyone's favorite super nerdy sci-fi franchise that's no longer super nerdy sci-fi, and is in fact now sometimes stupid, returns, this time into darkness, apparently.
Why: The main appeal of J.J. Abrams' 2009 reboot was the perfectly cast crew, especially Karl Urban's note-perfect pissy Bones. More time for them to flesh out their characters and interact is ideal; ditto Benedict Cumberbatch as the baddie.
Why not: Many mocked Abrams' penchant for copious lens flares, but the real problem was the way his plot and, in particular, action scenes plow over logic with the recklessness of any dumb actioner. But you know, who said "Star Trek" had to be smart?

Leonardo DiCaprio flashes a smile in "The Great Gatsby."
WARNER BROS. PICTURES

'The Great Gatsby'

(May 10)
What: F. Scott Fitzgerald's Jazz Age tome has already made for an underwhelming picture with an ideal cast before (in 1974, with Robert Redford, Mia Farrow and Bruce Dern). So why not do it again?
Why: Leonardo DiCaprio, Carey Mulligan and Tobey Maguire are all actors who would make an ideal Gatsby, Daisy and Nick, respectively.
Why not: It's directed by Baz Luhrmann, who gives Fitzgerald his "Moulin Rouge" time warp treatment, with flappers getting drunk to Jay-Z, 3-D and lots of digital imagery. If the novel's attributes are largely literary, might as well amp up the cinematography (or leave the novel alone.)

'The Hangover Part III'

(May 24)
What: You thought "Part II" would be different from the first. And then it turned out to be the same movie, only in Bangkok. But this one is actually different, for real, we swear. (But probably not.)
Why: Hey, there's always the chance it's not the same movie as the first. Even though it's also set in Vegas. You never know!
Why not: Occam's razor says otherwise.

'Fast & Furious 6'

(May 24)
What: The people who were kindergartners when this shape-shifting (and title-shifting) franchise began will soon graduate high school.
Why: Because "Fast Five" was surprisingly engaging, in a turn-off-your-brains-and-stare-at-the-vault-being-dragged-by-cars way. Now with Jason Statham!
Why not: It could always suck; other "Fast"s did.

'After Earth'

(May 31)
What: M. Night Shyamalan casts Will and Jaden Smith, who play humans returning to a post-apocalyptic Earth.
Why: Will Smith is a very good actor.
Why not: You know, M. Night Shyamalan is too easy to mock. Let's hope for a repeat of "Signs" — minus the garbage ending.

MATT PRIGGE
matt.prigge@metro.us

Indie spotlight

'Frances Ha'

(May 24)
What: Noah Baumbach ("The Squid and the Whale") reunites with his "Greenberg" leading lady Greta Gerwig for this black-and-white ode to the French New Wave.
Why: Baumbach is an acerbic genius and Gerwig is refining her unique, laid-back screen presence with every film, without becoming a stock ingenue.
Why not: Baumbach needs to reunite with his "Kicking and Screaming" stars Chris Eigeman, Carlos Jacott and Josh Hamilton. Just because.

'Sightseers'

(May 31)
What: A couple (Alice Lowe and Steve Oram) go on holiday through the English countryside, occasionally murdering innocent people.
Why: Director Ben Wheatley's "Kill List" was extremely messed-up, and this is him being funny.
Why not: Wheatley's worldview can veer a bit close to cynicism at times. Still, what's not funny about nice joggers run over for no reason?

Opening in June

Indie spotlight

'Much Ado About Nothing'

(June 7)
Joss Whedon turns from "The Avengers" to Shakespeare, casting some of his regulars (Nathan Fillion, Amy Acker) in major roles. Even if everyone's good, it'd be hard to top Kenneth Branagh's 1993 version, Keanu Reeves and all.

'The Bling Ring'

(June 14)
Sofia Coppola does her version of a crime saga about girls, led by Emma Watson, who rob celebrities' homes. Say what you will, but no one makes movies about the idle rich like Coppola. Appropriately, Paris Hilton plays herself.

'This Is the End'

(June 14)
What: The Apatow gang hang out at a Hollywood party taking place during the apocalypse. Not to be confused with Edgar Wright's forthcoming "The World's End," which is also a drunken comedy about the apocalypse.
Why: Michael Cera and others get amusingly offed.
Why not: A self-referential, valedictory romp from the Apatow clan after a string of bombs and underperformers seems a bit desperate.

'Monsters University'

(June 21)
What: It's that prequel to what was once upon a time the worst Pixar movie, which at the time was still a badge of honor.
Why: Pixar still has a nice track record. One bad film ("Cars 2") is nothing to sneeze at.
Why not: Billy Crystal.

Henry Cavill's Superman gets arrested in "Man of Steel." / WARNER BROS. PICTURES

'Man of Steel'

(June 14)
What: Bryan Singer's continuation of the '70s/'80s Superman films "only" grossed $400 million, so it's time for another reboot.
Henry Cavill, who was awful in "Immortals," is the new Clark Kent/Superman.
Why: Michael Shannon as General Zod! From the trailer it looks like producer Christopher Nolan strongarmed director Zack Snyder into not being like himself.
Why not: Can someone please make more fun superhero movies, just for more variety? Comics were once a bit more sprightly than these heavy broodfests.

'World War Z'

(June 21)
What: It's the apocalypse — again! But with zombies! Again!
Why: Brad Pitt is a very good actor.
Why not: Marc Forster made "Quantum of Solace," the only Bond film to actually be boring.

'White House Down'

(June 28)
What: Remember that movie that just came out where 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. was invaded? This is totally different.
Why: Channing Tatum, as a secret service agent who will save the day, is a big step-up from Gerard Butler.
Why not: Roland Emmerich last made a movie about how William Shakespeare didn't write the works of William Shakespeare.

MATT PRIGGE
matt.prigge@metro.us

Opening in July

'The Lone Ranger'

(July 5)
What: The radio show icon who hasn't been popular in ages finally comes to the screen for the first time since 1981's "The Legend of the Lone Ranger." Let's hope up-and-comer Armie Hammer fares better than that film's Klinton Spilsbury.
Why: When he's not on bloat autopilot, director Gore Verbinski is capable of inspired weirdness, as with "Rango."
Why not: Oh, you know, casual old school racism vis-a-vis Native Americans that Johnny Depp will do his best to awkwardly overcome.

'Pacific Rim'

(July 12)
What: It's been awhile since there was a movie about people piloting battle-bots. So here's one from Guillermo del Toro, with the kind of cast where Idris Elba gets second billing.
Why: Giant robots. Idris Elba. What, do you need a road map?
Why not: Del Toro has a penchant for creature design over narrative and sense. His fans consider that a good thing, but he can favor looks over all else, to a fault.

Jeff Bridges and Ryan Reynolds finally team up in "R.I.P.D."
SCOTT GARFIELD

'R.I.P.D.'

(July 12)
What: Ryan Reynolds plays a murdered cop who joins a police department in the afterlife.
Why: Jeff Bridges is the man with the golden gun.
Why not: Director Robert Schwentke previously made the underperforming "Red," but not its sequel, which to some mild amusement premieres the same day.

'Red 2'

(July 12)
What: The movie about olds shooting guns is back.
Why: More Helen Mirren with a big gun.
Why not: Sequels to mediocre films always try harder the next time, right?

'The Wolverine'

(July 26)
What: When we last saw him, in "X-Men Origins: Wolverine," Hugh Jackman's memory was erased. Hopefully so was yours, otherwise you might question whether to see this Japan-set sequel.
Why: The Wolverine fights samurai.
Why not: Again, because you remember how jaw-droppingly stupid "X-Men Origins: Wolverine" was.

'Only God Forgives'

(July)
What: "Drive" conspirators Ryan Gosling and director Nicolas Winding Refn reunite for a film about Thai boxing, with the promise that its pretty boy star gets his face wrecked real good.
Why: Sorry, haters: "Drive" is awesome.
Why not: N/A

Opening in August

Indie spotlight

'Prince Avalanche'

(Aug. 16)
What: Paul Rudd and Emile Hirsch play construction workers spending a summer repairing a remote Texas highway. And drinking.
Why: Director David Gordon Green returns — sort of — to the quieter, moodier indies of "George Washington," after a stint making stoner comedies ("Pineapple Express"). And Hirsch is amazing.
Why not: It's a modest indie easy to overrate — and underrate.

'Blue Jasmine'

(Aug. 28)
What: Guess what? Woody Allen made a new movie! Go figure!
Why: According to IMDB, the plot is "Plot undisclosed." But it's a drama and it features Cate Blanchett and Sally Hawkins, as well as Louis C.K. and Andrew Dice Clay. The last one might be the funniest joke he's made since "Deconstructing Harry."
Why not: Can you ever rely on latter-career Woody Allen? But, no matter what happens, we'll always have "Untitled Woody Allen Project" next year.

'2 Guns'

(Aug. 2)
What: Icelandic director Baltasar Kormakur ("101 Reykjavik") comes to America for this thriller about two men (Denzel Washington and Mark Wahlberg) set up by the CIA in a mob sting.
Why: Kormakur is a stylist, and both actors are capable of eccentric weirdness, so this might be unique rather than rote.
Why not: It might be rote.

'Elysium'

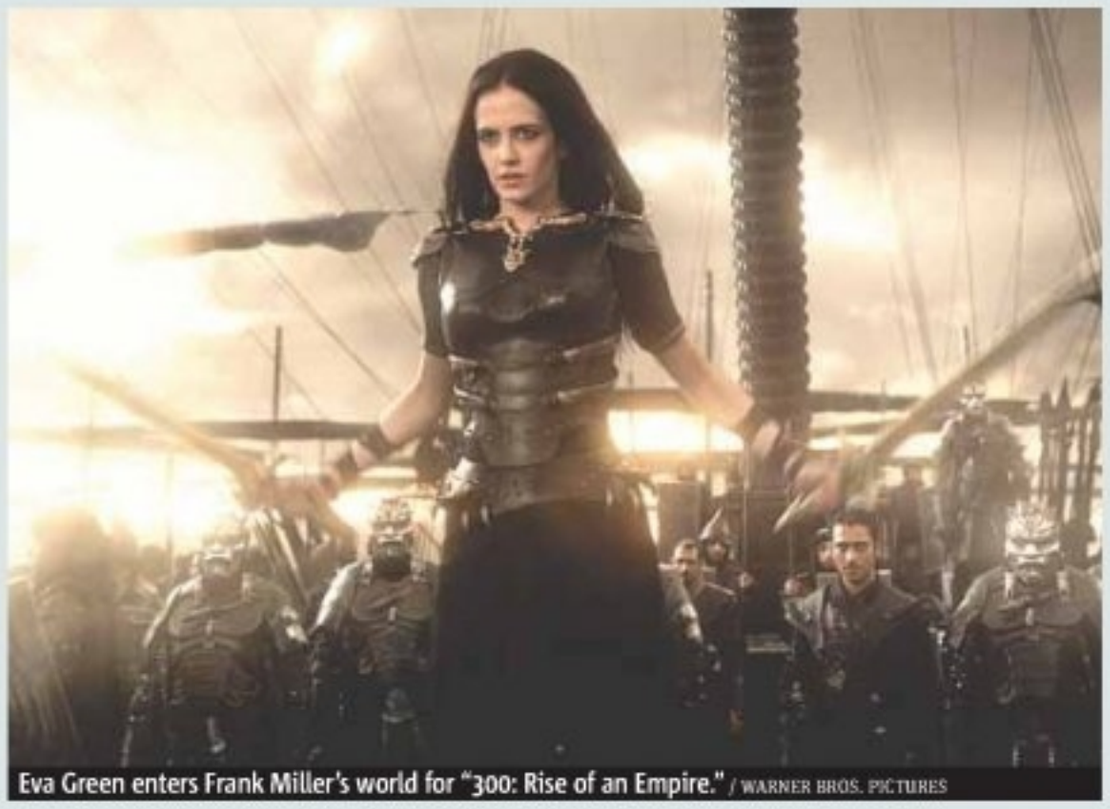
(Aug. 9)
What: Matt Damon and Jodie Foster star in this action film about a future Earth in which the rich have vacated and left the rest to rot on an overpopulated cesspool.
Why: "District 9" director Neill Bloomkamp has a knack for melding politics with popcorn fare.
What: But "District 9" wasn't always as sharp as it (or its fans) thought it was. And what is this premise but a slight reworking of the "Blade Runner" setup?

'Planes'

(Aug. 9)
What: "Cars" is the most popular Pixar film with kids, so it was only a matter of time before its parent company Disney did again with planes.
Why: Val Kilmer takes a break from direct-to-video fare that in no way deserves him to headline.
Why not: This is a copycat of Pixar's worst, most cynically calculated films.

'300: Rise of an Empire'

(Aug. 16)
What: Zack Snyder's 2007 gorefest was a surprise hit, meaning all execs had to do was wait for Frank Miller to not complete his prequel "Xerxes" before rushing into production anyway. The action turns to the Battle of Artemisium, which was probably as thrilling as the Battle of Thermopylae.
Why: Eva Green stars.
Why not: Could it ever be as OTT and racist, and both homophobic and homoerotic as the Zack Snyder original?



Eva Green enters Frank Miller's world for "300: Rise of an Empire." / WARNER BROS. PICTURES

Chloe Grace Moretz stars in "Kick-Ass 2." / UNIVERSAL PICTURES

'Kick-Ass 2'

(Aug. 2)
What: The meta-superhero action film gets a sequel, even though it underperformed. This time Jim Carrey gets into the mix as baddie Colonel Stars and Stripes.
Why: The original was enjoyably OTT, and featured an awesomely weird Nicolas Cage.
Why not: Nicolas Cage died in the original. Also gone is director Matthew Vaughn. And for a movie partly about a little murderess, the trailer is meh.

'The World's End'

(Aug. 23)
What: The last (we think) of the season's apocalypse movies is, luckily, the latest from Edgar Wright, reteaming with Simon Pegg and Nick Frost.
Why: Wright, Pegg and Frost haven't been together since "Hot Fuzz" in 2007. Jesus, really?
Why not: Pegg and Frost were last seen in "Paul," which was criminally underwhelming and choked to death on "Star Wars" jokes.

'The Grandmaster'

(August)
What: Martial arts pioneer Ip Man has been the subject of no fewer than three recent biopics. So here's another one.
Why: It happens to be Wong Kar-wai's first film in five years. That he reunites with Tony Leung (as Ip Man) and Zhang Ziyi only adds to the wonder.
Why not: Wong's last was "My Blueberry Nights," whose beauty could only distract from the stupidity for so long. Advance word hasn't been great.

Shane Black is this film's real star

Comic book movie. Robert Downey Jr. reteams with his "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" director.

Robert Downey Jr. is a far pissier (and even funnier) Tony Stark in Shane Black's "Iron Man 3." / ZADE ROSENTHAL

The first time Robert Downey Jr. and writer/director Shane Black teamed up, few people cared. With 2005's "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" they were two '80s casualties. Downey was a recovering druggie; Black, meanwhile, was Hollywood's former highest-paid screenwriter facing down backlash over having made too much money.

With "Lethal Weapon," "The Last Boy Scout" and others, Black created the modern smartass action blockbuster, only to find his pricey scripts turning meager profits. Cut to 2013. "Iron Man 3," their belated reunion, grossed in 10 seconds what "Kiss Kiss" made in its entire run. The times, they are a-changing back.

Black was brought on as a replacement for departing auteur Jon Favreau, and overhauled a massive product that was already running through the machine. The opening sequence of "Iron Man 3" is thrilling, which is to say it's "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" but with guys flying around in billion-dollar supersuits. It's 1999 and Downey's Tony Stark, a few years from rebirth, skulks about a New Year's Eve party, wooing a hottie scientist (Rebecca Hall) and relentlessly mocking a nerdy fanboy (Guy Pearce). Pissy quips fly fast, while the narration calls attention to the script's own making. "You're probably wondering why I'm telling you this," cracks Stark — a self-aware gag right out of "Kiss Kiss."

Alas, such introspection couldn't last in a billion-dollar grosser that regularly requires clangy action set pieces. It soon becomes apparent that while Black might have beefed up a project that would have been as tiresome as the doughy "Iron Man 2," he was likely under orders to leave some of it stupid. Here, Stark is attacked by a bin Laden-ish heavy known as The Mandarin (Ben Kingsley). He might have connections to the aforementioned Pearce, who cleaned himself up into a golden god not above showing off his six-pack.

In a nice twist, Stark spends the majority of the film sans suit, stranded in Nowhere, Tennessee. An even better twist, one that ought not to be spoiled, comes later. (Let's just say that it elegantly and amusingly disarms the queasy racism of having a villain in 2013 called "The Mandarin.")

Black is a dark guy, but his darkness often manifests itself in hilariously caustic one-liners. He goes as far as he can in tailoring the project to his own whims, and he treats the material he can't change with indifference — if not active hostility. Don Cheadle's War Machine has been painted red, white and blue, and renamed the Iron Patriot, a cheesy rebranding Stark never misses an opportunity to belittle. But the usually brash Stark also experiences many moments of vulnerability this time around, and he excels in those scenes.

It's odd for a filmmaker to try defeating the very cliches he once helped create. But then, times have changed: Hollywood product is more impersonal; personality is discouraged. Black, once the architect of blockbusters, is now an iconoclast. His "Iron Man 3" doesn't have a heart (as though that's a bad thing) but it does have a genuine sense of fun — even the noisiest, nonsense-iest parts are delivered with a smile.

A fundamentally mediocre exposé

Topical drama. Mira Nair makes a dodgy War on Terror saga better than it has to be.

Riz Ahmed stars in "The Reluctant Fundamentalist." / QUANTRELL COLBERT/RELUCTANT FILMS II, INC.

The Indian director Mira Nair ("Salaam Bombay!" "Monsoon Wedding") is a sensualist and a humanist. These qualities don't make her ideal for a political thriller, even one as light on action and absurdly heavy on backstory as "The Reluctant Fundamentalist."

This adaptation of Mohsin Hamid's slim novel aims for topicality, but Nair keeps trying to pull it the other way. On one hand, the results are maddeningly wishy-washy and unfocused. On the other, it's always preferable when a simplistic, reductive tract gets a bit of personality to it.

Riz Ahmed, who previously played an innocent man in "The Road to Guantanamo" and a bumbling suicide bomber in the Chris Morris satire "Four Lions," plays a man suspected of terrorism. Ahmed's Changez is a Pakistani social climber in the thrall of the American dream. Alas, his rise through Wall Street — and his fling with a trust fund "artist" (Kate Hudson) — clashes conveniently with the events of Sept. 11. Suddenly he's being racially profiled, even while clad in Brooks Brothers. The feds' shamefully sloppy work succeeds only in radicalizing Changez, who soon decamps for his homeland to talk smack about America.

The bulk of "Fundamentalist" is a massive flashback, with the now bearded and intense Changez relating his tale to a pothead journo (Liev Schreiber) in a cafe. Outside is a swelling riot as well as forces about to nab him over his alleged ties to a hostage situation — but Changez insists on plowing through his life history anyway. "You need to know everything," he asserts. You don't, particularly given how ridiculously the wraparound thriller plot resolves itself.

Nair is not the filmmaker for anything remotely hot-button. She likes people too much. Every character, even an otherwise one-note caricature like Kiefer Sutherland's robotic megaboss, gets a moment fleshing them out. The trajectory of "Fundamentalist" is overly clean, but the characters are allowed complexities. Hudson makes an ideal unreliable girlfriend, selfish and pathetic at the right moments, while Ahmed's Changez is a man both fiery and stubborn, as well as sometimes flat-out wrong. Characters are allowed to screw up in Nair's films, which is refreshing, and while she has little idea how to spice up many of the office scenes — though few would — she sporadically shoehorns in eye-pleasing montages and song performances. It's mostly for naught, but a completely straight version of the same material, which would have historically been directed by Stanley Kramer, would be deadly.

Director Francois Ozon would like you to pay attention to him again

Fabrice Luchini, Ernst Umhauer and Emmanuelle Seigner star in "In the House." / JEAN-CLAUDE MOIREAU

French comedy.
"In the House" messes around with suburban families and narrative.

Once upon a time, Francois Ozon ruled the art house. A self-styled enfant terrible of French and international cinema, he made maddeningly elusive art films ("See the Sea"), tackled unfilmed scripts by Rainer Werner Fassbinder ("Water Drops on Burning Rocks") and gained the trust of aging matrons like Charlotte Rampling ("Under the Sand," "Swimming Pool") and Catherine Deneuve et al ("8 Women"). But "enfants" grow up — or at least their audiences do. Ozon's work in the last decade hasn't attracted the attention it did previously, and Ozon's career is now the type where every new film is dubbed a comeback, even if it's just another perfectly adequate addition to an oeuvre that will look impressive in retrospect.

Ozon's latest "comeback" — after 2010's well-liked "Potiche" — is his most overtly playful since his heyday. Fabrice Luchini plays a high school lit and composition teacher bored with his career and bored with his pupils. Upon discovering that one of them, the remote Claude (Ernst Umhauer), is actually a promising man of letters, he latches onto him and gives him an assignment: worm his way into the lives of a jock and his parents to see what constitutes the "perfect" family. (That the "perfect mom" is played by Emmanuelle Seigner, aka Mrs. Roman Polanski, is one of the film's better jokes.) Claude's reports on his findings, with him uncovering not a few sneaky transgressions, turn into serials, which Germane reads with the lip-smacking expectation of a stay-at-home parent watching his "stories." But is Claude making it up?

If "In the House" is a return to form — and it's worth noting that 2007's "Angel," which went unaccountably straight to video domestically, is rather excellent — it's a reminder that said form was rarely much more than pleasant, and often self-satisfied to a fault. Like much Ozon, "House" rides out an amusing premise without deviating much from the course. Once you get what Claude, and the film, is doing — which holds back considerably more than his other, nastier suburban assault, 1998's "Sitcom" — there's not much to expect beyond predictably "unpredictable" twists. Also like past Ozons, there's always the acting, never not lovely, with a never-better Luchini paired nicely with an inevitably Kristin Scott Thomas-y Kristin Scott Thomas, as his contemporary art gallery-running wife (cue easy jokes about contemporary art.) That Ozon is actually hugely compassionate toward his suburban targets, moreso than those intruding upon them, is both good and less good.

Here's to you, Black Rebel Motorcycle Club

Music. Robert Levon Been and company salute the passing of a mentor with their new album.

Black Rebel Motorcycle Club didn't originally plan to cover The Call on "Specter at the Feast." / PROVIDED

Black Rebel Motorcycle Club's Robert Levon Been isn't about to say that making his band's new record was particularly difficult. But, the California trio's sixth record, "Specter at the Feast," followed the abrupt death of Been's father, Michael, the band's sound engineer, who fronted 1980s pop band The Call.

"Any album that's worth a s— is difficult to make," Been says. "There were lots of different things that made this difficult. After the last tour, we were exhausted, and my father's passing at the end of the tour meant there was a mourning process to go through. Things are always difficult when you're caught in the eye of the storm."

Taking its name from a quote in "Macbeth," "Specter at the Feast" finds co-frontman/bassist Been and his bandmates — guitarist and co-singer Peter Hayes and drummer Leah Shapiro — losing themselves in shoe-gazey psychedelia, barreling heavy rock and occasional quieter songs like the doleful album closer, "Lose Yourself." In the middle of it all is an anthemic cover of The Call's "Let the Day Begin."

"That song found its way onto the album somehow," Been says. "It wasn't planned, but it felt right to remember all the love and help my father gave us. It's always difficult covering someone's song. You want to be respectful but also put your fingerprint on it. We turned that song inside-out. We knew a ballad was not what we needed. We needed a song that felt like it was about standing back up and moving forward."

So emotional

One song BRMC recorded during the "Specter" sessions wasn't for the album: "Heaven and All" was written for "Sound City," Foo Fighters' Dave Grohl's doc about the Neve recording console behind legendary albums like Nirvana's "Nevermind."

"It seemed like a good idea," Been says of contributing a song. "But then we walk in and there's Dave Grohl standing there, Butch Vig's standing there, and there's all these cameras. We definitely felt the pressure."

The console, which they used for "Specter," was used for BRMC's 2001 debut, too: "I don't get emotional about gear, but it felt good to have that console back."

The Tokyo String Quartet says farewell

Tokyo String Quartet are getting ready to put down their instruments. / MARCO BORGGREVE

Music. The group will play their final show in Philly.

The 2012 film "A Late Quartet" traces the rifts that form in the relationships between the members of a long-running string quartet as its senior member (played by Christopher Walken) decides to retire. The members of the Tokyo String Quartet didn't face such personal conflicts when founding member Kazuhide Isomura and violinist Kikuei Ikeda, who joined in 1974, decided to call it a day. But the remaining members made the no less dramatic decision to end the 43-year-old quartet with their departure.

"In the end, we felt it would be very hard to find two members that would have a unity of vision between the two of them, let alone with the remaining members from the previous incarnation of the group," says cellist Clive Greensmith. "I think we both felt that it would be stretching just a little too far."

Tokyo String Quartet was founded in 1969 at the Juilliard School by four musicians who had been influenced by Professor Hideo Saito at the Toho School of Music in Tokyo. "A quartet should evolve in different ways but always has to remember its roots," says Greensmith, who joined the ensemble in 1999. "I always found that our group had a nice balance between heart and head, and that the individual expression of each member was well balanced with the corporate vision of the group. It was and still is very much a cultural attribute that I've observed in Japanese people. There is an objectivity and a sense of allowing the music to speak for itself."

Greensmith and violinist Martin Beavers, the quartet's newest member, having joined 11 years ago, will continue to work together. Both are joining the faculty of Los Angeles' Colburn School of Music and plan to begin a new piano trio. But their current tour is a bittersweet farewell to the repertoire that the quartet has been performing for more than four decades.

They'll play in Philadelphia for the final time on Sunday, with a program featuring Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Bartok.

"We played our last-ever Ravel quartet yesterday on Long Island," Greensmith said when we spoke early this week. "So we're saying goodbye to the music, familiar pieces that we've lived with and played regularly over the last 43 years. It's tinged with a little melancholy."

As part of VOZ! Congreso, a collection of intimate conversations with acclaimed Latino celebrities and intellectuals, the popular CNN host will cover many topics featured in her show, "Latino in America."

Art

Snyderman-Works Gallery
Saturday, 4 p.m.
303 Cherry St.
Free, 215-238-9576
www.snyderman-works.com
Snyderman-Works Gallery is going all out to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the zipper, (yep, the zipper), by throwing an innovative zipper fashion show. Nearby boutiques will also be participating, including Three Sirens and Scarlett Alley. And of course you can't have a celebration without lots of food. Restaurants Cuba Libre, Wedge and Fig, and more will provide food and drinks to make it the best zipper celebration ever.

Festival

Come Together: Koresh Dance Company's Spring Dance Festival

Through May 12
Suzanne Roberts Theatre
480 S. Broad St.
$25-$35, 215-751-0959
www.koreshdance.org
Twenty-seven choreographers and dance companies are coming together for "Come Together," a nine-day festival celebrating all kinds of dance: ballet, hip-hop, jazz, gymnastics, aerial, modern and more. We recommend Friday's performance with local favorites Rennie Harris PureMovement and Brian Sanders' JUNK. They'll make you get up out of your seat and groove to the beat.

Guess who!

1 Could 2013 be the summer of Leonardo DiCaprio? We would have said that maybe 1996 was, but "Romeo + Juliet" came out in the fall. We would say that 1998 was, but "Titanic" was a winter movie. So with "The Great Gatsby" coming out next weekend, the star is about to be everywhere. But who was he with late last month at the 24th annual GLAAD Media Awards? Blipp here to find out.

2 Who on earth could be behind this question mark? Shaking hands with Colin Hanks at the gift lounge of the 28th Rock and Roll Hall of Fame induction, it certainly would be interesting to have been a fly on the wall. You can Blipp to see who it was.

Who's that girl?

The "Virgin Bachelor" Sean Lowe boarded an L.A. flight on April 25 for a quick public appearance in North Carolina, but he didn't take fiancée Catherine Giudici along with him. Actually, it was his "Dancing With the Stars" partner, Peta Murgatroyd, who was his seatmate, reports Life & Style.

An eyewitness tells the magazine: "It was his dance partner from the show. I couldn't believe my eyes."

Lowe is now on the defensive, saying that Murgatroyd went with him so they could "squeeze in more rehearsal time." I wonder what else they "squeezed in" on that trip?

Witherspoon speaks about her arrest

Two weeks after she was arrested for disorderly conduct and her husband was arrested for a DUI while in Atlanta, Reese Witherspoon is attempting damage control. "It was one of those nights, we went out to dinner in Atlanta and we had one too many glasses of wine. We thought we were fine to drive and we absolutely were not," she told "Good Morning America." "I had no idea what I was saying that night. I saw him arresting my husband and I literally panicked. I said all kinds of crazy things. I told him I was pregnant — I'm not pregnant. I said crazy things. I have no idea what I was talking about. … I was so disrespectful to him."

She told him she was pregnant? That's so weird. Did she think the officer would be more sympathetic to a drunk pregnant woman?

Obituary

Chris Kelly: RIP

It's tough to know how to tastefully cover the death of somebody who pop culture knows as a one-hit wonder. Rapper Chris Kelly died earlier this week. He was only 14 when he and Chris Smith had a hit with "Jump" in 1992 as Kris Kross. He hadn't had a hit that big since. As details emerge about his death, it gets sadder. TMZ reported that his mother called 911 when she found him unresponsive at Kelly's Atlanta home. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. An overdose of cocaine and heroin was suspected.

The Spice Girls lose their spice

The Spice Girls' West End musical "Viva Forever!", which features the girl band's songs, is closing after four months. "We love u all Viva Forever, what a shocka, gutted," Geri "Ginger Spice" Halliwell tweeted.

A message from the show's producer reads, "It is with a heavy heart that I've had to make this very difficult decision to post closing notice for "Viva Forever!" Despite the wonderful audiences … we just can't make it work. Viva Forever! May be taking its leave for now, but the legacy of Spice Girls will never fade!"

Actually, if your musical closes after four months, your legacy is fading. That's exactly what that means.

Tales from a prison cell

Reunion. Former prisoners and staffers will meet at Eastern State Penitentiary.

The legendary prison, once home to Al Capone, will host its alumni this weekend. / EASTERN STATE PENITENTIARY

In 1971, the last inmate left his cell and the last officer made his rounds at Eastern State Penitentiary, before the doors closed for good.

On Saturday, former prisoners and staff will return for the annual alumni reunion and recount stories of their past, from living conditions to baseball games.

Sometimes, the stories can get pretty heavy.

Last year, a former inmate named John mentioned during the Q&A portion of the event that he watched another inmate commit suicide.

"Hearing him tell that story was amazing," says Sean Kelley, director of public programming at Eastern State. "After the presentation, I asked him to show me exactly where it happened. It was directly above my desk. It was chilling."

Two panels of 20 will speak during two presentations, including a former secretary, Carol, one of the only women to ever work at the maximum-security prison.

"Carol comes every year and she has amazing stories," Kelley says. "She talks about the flirtatious inmates and some of the intrigue behind the scenes of staff romances."

Another inmate, also named John, who goes every year, talks about the unfair treatment he and other prisoners received from guards.

But it's not all bad memories. One former inmate nicknamed "No-No," because he pitched back-to-back no-hitters on the prison baseball team, talks about how back then, he, a young black man, beat all the older Italian men at bocce ball.

The best part, Kelley says, are the questions from the audience. What was it like? How does it feel being back? Why do you come back?

"There's one inmate who is gone now who used to say he comes back because all his bad memories took place there. But all the good ones did, too. He was there 15 years," Kelley says.

But one question that usually doesn't come up is, "What were you in for?"

Kelley says even current staffers don't ask that.

"A couple of the guys who have been here in the past have commuted life sentences," he says. "Someone died somewhere for you to get that sentence. It was a maximum-security prison, and these guys don't claim to be Boy Scouts.

"They paid their debt to society and now they are coming back to share their stories to the public. Now, they are free members of society."

One alum's story

Linwood Johnson, who spent nearly 10 years as a corrections officer at Eastern State, says that nowadays there's no place like it: "I think it was a country club compared to what they have going on today."

Officers and inmates were friends and everyone knew everyone else.

"You had a lot of lifers who spent a long time there," Johnson says. "There were a lot of people who knew what they had to do and did what they had to do. It ran pretty smoothly. It was a good place to work."

Not up for Cinco de Mayo crowds? You can still sip a classic margarita.

The Partida Margarita

Ingredients:

- 1 ½ ounces Partida tequila (blanco or reposado)
- 1 ounce fresh squeezed lime juice (the juice of one whole lime)
- ¾ ounces Partida agave nectar (to taste)
- ¾ ounces pure water

Directions:

Shake all ingredients with ice in a standard bar shaker. Add additional lime juice if you prefer more tartness; add more agave nectar for more sweetness. Serve in glass on rocks. No garnish, no salt.

Where to have a Philly fiesta on Cinco de Mayo

After a drawn-out winter and chilly spring, we're ready for a mean, south-of-the-border drink. Luckily for us, Cinco de Mayo is almost here, which is the perfect excuse for a margarita overload Sunday night. We scouted around town and found the big parties, and the little shindigs, to help you get festive.

The ultimate battle of the burgers is back

Good Dog is serving up a roquefort cheese-stuffed patty. / STUART GOLDENBERG

Taste test. Get ready for the third annual Burger Brawl.

Line up for Capital Grille burgers at Burger Brawl. / STUART GOLDENBERG

We're kidding ourselves if we think that burgers were meant only to be crafted and consumed. The juicy summer staple was designed to also duke it out with its beefy brethren. And in the case of the annual Burger Brawl, returning for its third year, the fight also helps to raise money for elementary schools. And you thought burgers were just for eating.

"The idea came to me when my wife and I were at a meeting at Meredith Elementary, where our oldest son was going," says Rob Wasserman, Burger Brawl founder and owner of Rouge, 500 Degrees and Ardmore's The Saint James. "I looked at my wife and said, 'Maybe there's something we can do?' Well, that was the silliest thing I ever said — there was plenty to do. It's a huge amount of work, but it's all totally worth it."

After making a few calls to his industry buddies, Wasserman was able to pull together the first Burger Brawl in 2011.

The concept is simple: roughly two dozen restaurants from around the city meet up at the Fleisher Art Memorial to hand out burger samples to a hungry crowd. Some are purists and dish out a no-frills product. Others go nuts with mini-slabs of pork belly, pickled toppings and other unexpected flavor combinations. A panel of judges crowns their winner, while the now stuffed crowd votes to name one patty the People's Choice. The prize is a year's worth of bragging rights. And every year the bar is raised a little higher, the trash talking gets a little dirtier, and the victory dances become more elaborate.

"Everybody is stepping up," says Wasserman. "Philly is so community-oriented, it's great. All the restaurants are happy to help. I can't say enough about the chefs. They're using their time, money and effort to be there and it just makes the whole thing come together."

JULIA WEST

Eating for a cause

The Burger Brawl has raised nearly $100,000 since it began in 2011, Wasserman says. Proceeds went to fund a new computer lab at Meredith Elementary in Queen Village, and now the money is being donated to other schools in need.

Dan James sees you looking at his wine bottles. / PROVIDED

Enjoying Philly as a foodie town

Hot chef. Dan James creates rotating menus at Vintage Wine Bar.

Midtown Village is no longer restaurant-goers' coveted secret. The word is out — and has been for some time now — that 13th Street, specifically between Chestnut and Locust, is ripe with fine dining. Among the hot spots is Vintage Wine Bar, where chef Dan James is creating rotating menus. We scored insider info on what to expect from his kitchen this month.

Can you explain the upcoming wine and cheese flights that Vintage will have on the weekends?
Starting in mid-May we're highlighting cheese from Pennsylvania and New Jersey. It'll probably change weekly. And we'll have a new spring menu around the same time.

You previously worked at Brasserie Perrier, Southwark and Pub & Kitchen. How is Vintage Wine Bar different?
Vintage is really unique. We're a wine bar and bistro, but I feel like the bar vibe is still really strong here. I keep the cooking really simple. I think that type of food works with the atmosphere. It's still a bar and bistro at the end of the day, just rooted in fine dining.

That part of Midtown Village has become a great food destination.
Oh yeah. I remember when Sampan was a parking lot. This is a really interesting neighborhood.

What's your neighborhood?
I just moved back to South Philly. I was in Fishtown for a while but my girlfriend and I just bought a house in Newbold, so I spend plenty of time at South Philly Tap Room. Right now we're renovating the house and working on a new kitchen.

Is that taking up a lot of your free time?
Yep, but it's fun.

Are you doing anything else on your days off?
We're planning a few day trips to the mountains and down the shore.

You were trained in Napa Valley. How did you adjust to cooking in Philly?
Well I'm from around here, I've just been moving around for about 10 years. The job market here is so much better because there's a real sense of community between fellow Philly chefs. Napa was more cutthroat, kill or be killed, you know?

You came back to Philadelphia in 2008. It's become a progressive food town since then.
It's really changed even in just the past three years. There are a lot more small restaurants with a focus on fine dining and seasonal menus. Everyone's doing their own cool thing.

A brunch that's muy delicioso

Recipe. Crispy chips, spicy sauce and eggs any way you like — say hi to your new go-to.

When we met Yvette Marquez-Sharpnack and Veronica Gonzalez-Smith, the lovely sisters behind cooking blog Muy Bueno, they were simmering a batch of spicy red sauce for chilaquiles, as part of a demonstration for the cookware brand Princess House. After our third helping, we had to get their recipe. Here, Gonzalez-Smith tells us why it's the perfect dish the next time you host brunch.

Why are chilaquiles so great for brunch?
Chilaquiles are great because they are a little bit of breakfast and a little bit of dinner all wrapped up in one spicy classic Mexican recipe.

What sides or drinks pair well with the dish?
Frijoles de la olla, or refried beans, are always great. As far as drinks, try the agua de Jamaica (hibiscus tea) recipe on our site.

TINA CHADHA
tina.chadha@metro.us

Ingredients

For the red chile sauce:

- 8 ounces California or New Mexico red chile pods
- 6 cups water
- 6 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 4 cloves garlic
- 1 tablespoon salt

For the chilaquiles:

- 8 corn tortillas
- 1 tablespoon canola oil
- 2 cups red chile sauce
- 1 cup shredded queso quesadilla or Colby cheese
- 1/3 cup diced green or red onions
- 4 to 8 eggs, cooked any style

Chilaquiles Rojos

For the red chile sauce:

1 Remove stems, seeds and veins from the chile pods. Place in a colander and rinse well with cool water.

2 Add the chiles to a large pot and add enough water so they are just covered. Bring water to a boil. Lower the heat, cover and simmer for about 20 minutes. After 10 minutes, turn the chiles over with tongs to make sure they soften evenly. Drain cooked pods and allow time to cool down before blending. Discard water.

3 Fill blender with three cups of water, half of the cooled chile pods, three tablespoons flour, two cloves garlic and half of the salt. Blend until smooth. Strain sauce through a fine sieve to remove skins and seeds; discard skins and seeds. Repeat blending and straining process with remaining water, pods, flour, garlic and salt. If necessary, season with more salt. Makes 6 to 7 cups.

This sauce can be made in advance and kept in airtight containers in the refrigerator or freezer. Red chile sauce can be stored in the refrigerator for up to one week or frozen for up to six months.

For the chilaquiles:

1 Cut corn tortillas into quarters. In a large skillet, heat oil and fry corn tortilla pieces until crunchy. Lower heat to low.

2 Add red chile sauce and mix only long enough to coat all the tortillas. Top with cheese while still over low flame and cook just long enough for cheese to melt.

3 Remove from heat and sprinkle with onions. Serve with eggs any style. Makes 4 servings.

Q&A

How do you keep the chips from getting soggy?
There's really no way around the soggy chips issue; however, when you make them at home and you eat them immediately after serving, you can kiss sogginess goodbye. If you want to avoid the soggy chips for, say, a brunch, you might try keeping the red sauce warm, and then your guests can just assemble when they are ready to eat them.

Horoscope

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Unless you have no choice, do not delegate a critical assignment to a surrogate. If you must, keep a constant check on the party in question.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. When pressed for answers about work or financial questions, you can be very resourceful. This gift can work wonders.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You're likely to be unusually receptive to new concepts. This asset will prove to be quite valuable.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Don't hesitate to make a change to a current project if you feel it would help.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You may get an opportunity to spend time with someone you don't know well. This person could turn into a good friend.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. This is a good day to begin to distance yourself from an endeavor that has proved unproductive.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. If you're wondering why a recent acquaintance is starting to warm up to you, the answer is simple. You no longer are judging this person as harshly as you once did.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. A whole new way of adding to your resources might come about through an unusual set of circumstances.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. You are about to enter a new cycle where your athletic skills could begin to peak. Take part in sporting activities.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Should you amaze yourself in coming up with an ingenious concept for making or saving money, believe it and use it.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Everybody around you might require assistance or a backup, but not you.

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20. If you experiment, you could be closer to a major achievement than you think. With only a few minor adjustments, you'll have what you desire.

Revere's .222 slugging percentage is second worst in the majors. / GETTY IMAGES

Pierre shows Revere some brotherly love

MLB. Team's new center fielder gets words of encouragement from the man he replaced.

Extra bases

Charlie Manuel was just joking when he said he might play Carlos Ruiz every game for the rest of the season.

- Chooch had Thursday night off. Manuel decided to rest him since he never played more than three games in a row in Clearwater. Erik Kratz started. Ruiz is batting .083 since returning from a 25-game suspension.

When Ben Revere was acquired by the Phillies last December, the early reports were the same.

"A young Juan Pierre" was the phrase that baseball pundits used.

So who better to access Revere's struggles than Pierre?

"It's way too early to worry about Ben Revere," said Pierre, who was in town Thursday as a member of the Miami Marlins. "He'll come around."

Pierre, who impressed with the Phillies in 2012 with his ability to get on base and tireless work ethic, is confident that Revere — hitting just .200, with a .222 slugging percentage — will come around.

"Give him a break," Pierre said. "He's changing leagues and that's difficult. I know when I went from the National League to the American League, I hit .200 for the first two months."

So, yes, Revere mirrors Pierre. If that remains so, expect the young center fielder to break out of his funk.

"I know I'll be fine," Revere said. "I have to make some adjustments. I know I can hit."

But Revere may need some time to get there. He jammed his right hand Wednesday night in Cleveland and needed X-rays on his hand.

"It doesn't feel bad," Revere said. "We'll see. I think I'll be fine."

Pierre admires Revere's speed.

"When I first saw this cat, running, I noticed how fast he is," Pierre said. "He's going to help this team. He needs to make adjustments and get into a groove."

Temple University has asked a Canadian high school to stop using a logo that looks exactly like the famed owl logo the school uses. CARFAX VEHICLE HISTORY REPORTS

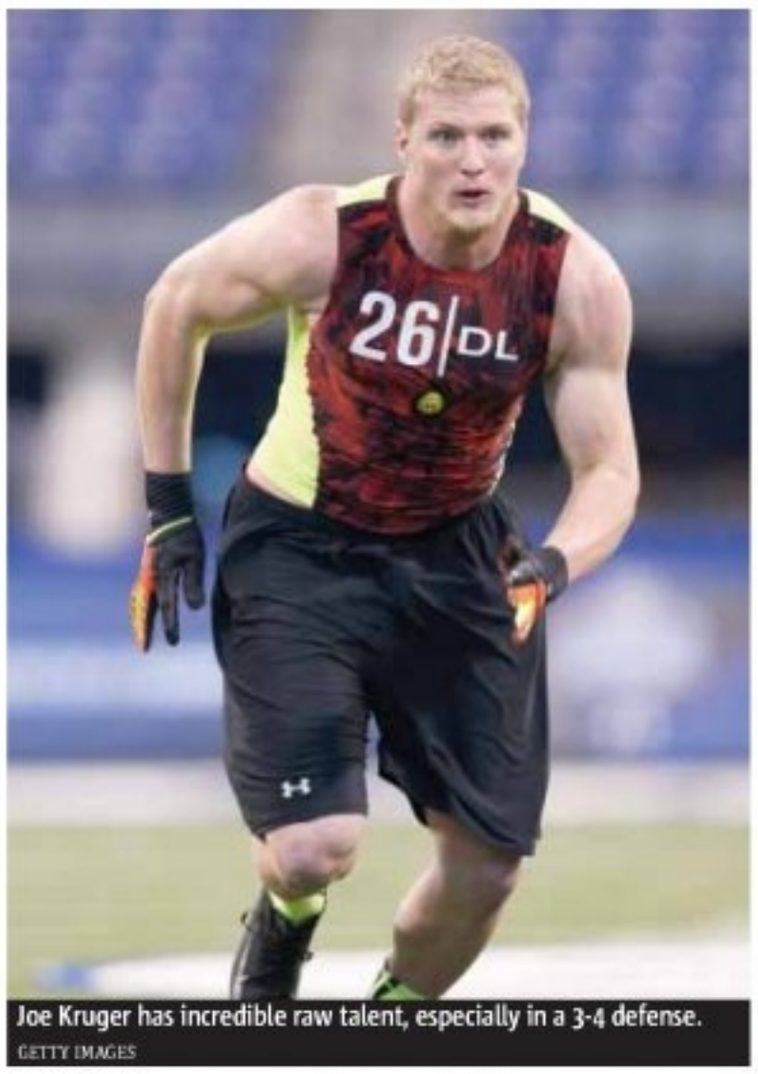
Eagles banking on younger Kruger for pass-rushing aid



Joe Kruger has incredible raw talent, especially in a 3-4 defense.
GETTY IMAGES

NFL. Joe Kruger has heard the comparisons to his more famous brother, Paul.

Paul recently won a Super Bowl as a pass-rushing specialist for the Baltimore Ravens, then cashed in by inking a five-year, $40 million deal with the Cleveland Browns. Joe, selected in the seventh round of last weekend's NFL draft by the Eagles, called his skill sets similar.

"I would compare our game a lot. I think we are both powerful players," Joe said. "I think Paul is going to be dropping more and playing more linebacker now. This offseason they [Cleveland Browns] had him lose a little bit of weight. So, I guess we'll see what the Eagles have me do. We're similar motor. We both go to the ball until the whistle has been blown and both have the same mentality. I'm a guy that hates to lose and I really don't sit well with it."

The only knock — if it is a knock — on Joe going into the combine was that he was too raw. In a 3-4 defensive scheme, with the proper NFL coaching, he could thrive. Joe had 30 tackles and six sacks last season at Utah before leaving early for the draft.

"At the end of the season, I kind of just looked at my future and looked at what was going to be best for me and I thought I played well enough to leave this past season, and I think I'm mature enough and strong enough."

Joe isn't sure exactly where he fits in with the Eagles yet, or which position he'll play. He's played outside linebacker and defensive end in his career.

"I've played both positions and they really haven't told me what kind of defense they will be running this year; so I can do both, but right now I don't know what I'll be doing," he said.

MICHAEL GREGER
michael.greger@metro.us

Cup of Joe

Joe Kruger (6-foot-6, 269 lbs.) was considered a value pick by many draft pundits and scouts.

- His strengths, according to NFL.com: Very impressive size. Athletic. Long arms. Plays with power, capable of bull rushing offensive lineman back into the quarterback. Extends his arms and can keep offensive linemen off his frame. Plays with a firm base. Flows to the football well, and is an effort player.
- Weaknesses (NFL.com): Plays with a high pad level too often. Pops upright off the snap and will give up leverage. Needs to add more weight. Struggles to bend as a pass-rusher. Lacks counter moves, will get stuck on his block.

Eagles footrace ignites comedic Twitter chain

NFL. Vick beats McCoy in 40-yard dash after running back called him "old man."

Eagles safety Colt Anderson started a mini controversy Thursday when he posted a tweet about Mike Vick beating LeSean McCoy in a foot race. More specifically, it was a 40-yard dash.

"Vick just beat Shady in a 40 yard race. @MikeVick," wrote Anderson in the original tweet.

Later, Vick confirmed it and added more details. Apparently, McCoy had been calling the quarterback an "old man" and telling him he was slow for the past few weeks. On Thursday, Vick — with permission from coach Chip Kelly — accepted his offer for a race.

McCoy wants a rematch.
GETTY IMAGES

"So today at the field 1 of my teammates called me old & bagged to race me in the 40yd dash. Anybody want to guess which player? #Bird Gang," Vick wrote on Twitter.

Vick added that he won by a few yards — and that didn't sit well with McCoy, who jokingly sent out his own tweet claiming that Vick cheated.

"My brother a cheater haha," wrote McCoy, adding, "Monday rematch going down lolRT."

The only real question is, where was DeSean Jackson? Surely he could smoke both Vick and McCoy.

Jets' Sanchez wants to start

Mark Sanchez is talking like the Jets' starting quarterback.

Days after New York drafted rookie Geno Smith, Sanchez told the media that he's "thrilled" to compete for the job. When asked if he'd open the season as the starter, he said, "Sure, no doubt." METRO

Miami denies Tebow talk

Cross off another potential suitor for Tim Tebow.

The Miami Dolphins are not interested in Tebow, according to The Miami Herald. Super agent Drew Rosenhaus had speculated that Miami might be a good fit. METRO

Warriors coach fined

Warriors coach Mark Jackson was fined $25,000 Thursday for public comments about the officiating in his playoff series.

Jackson thought a hard foul by Denver's Kenneth Faried on Warriors star Stephen Curry was a dirty play. Jackson accused Denver of sending "hit me" after Curry. METRO

NBA

Harden sick, set to play

Houston guard James Harden was diagnosed with strep throat, but he's expected to play in Friday's Game 6.

Harden, despite flu-like symptoms, scored 31 points in Wednesday night's 107-100 win. Oklahoma City leads the series, 3-2. METRO

NFL. Eagles announce date for single-game ticket sales for 2013

One of the most anticipated days for Eagles fans is scheduled for May 9.

That's when single-game and standing room-only tickets will go on sale for all 10 home games for the 2013 season. Fans can purchase tickets starting at 10 a.m. by visiting the Eagles' website or Ticketmaster.

There is a four-ticket limit per household, with prices ranging from $75 to $105. The Eagles open the home half of the regular season on Sept. 15 against San Diego.

Four days later (Sept. 19) will be the hottest item, as the Birds welcome back Andy Reid and the Kansas City Chiefs. The first home preseason game is Aug. 9 against New England.

Seats are normally gone in a matter of minutes — and may go even quicker this season with excitement continuing to build around new coach Chip Kelly and the up-tempo offense he is trying to implement with a talent-laden roster.

Passion and pride

"The fact our team gets to play in front of sell-out crowds is a testament to Philadelphia's passion for the Eagles."
Smolenski

"We are overwhelmed by the support that Eagles fans show for their team every day," Eagles president Don Smolenski said in 2012. "The fact that our team gets to play in front of sell-out crowds is a testament to Philadelphia's passion for the Eagles. We thank those fans for their dedication and we are just as excited as they are." METRO

Candidates emerge in coach search

Jeff Hornacek is a candidate to replace Doug Collins.
GETTY IMAGES

NBA. Sixers set to interview Jeff Hornacek, Mike Malone as quest begins to heat up.

The Sixers coaching search (wait, did you forget about that?) has zeroed in on two names in recent days.

The team has received permission to interview Golden State Warriors assistant Mike Malone and Utah Jazz assistant Jeff Hornacek, according to multiple reports.

Malone is the top assistant under head coach Mark Jackson. Hornacek, who played for the Sixers, has been in Utah for two seasons.

The Sixers have also been linked to Pacers assistant Brian Shaw, while monitoring contract talks between Lionel Hollins and the Memphis Grizzlies, according to Yahoo! Sports.

The team is expected to begin the interview process next week. METRO

2013 KENTUCKY DERBY BETTING GUIDE | by Kristian Dyer

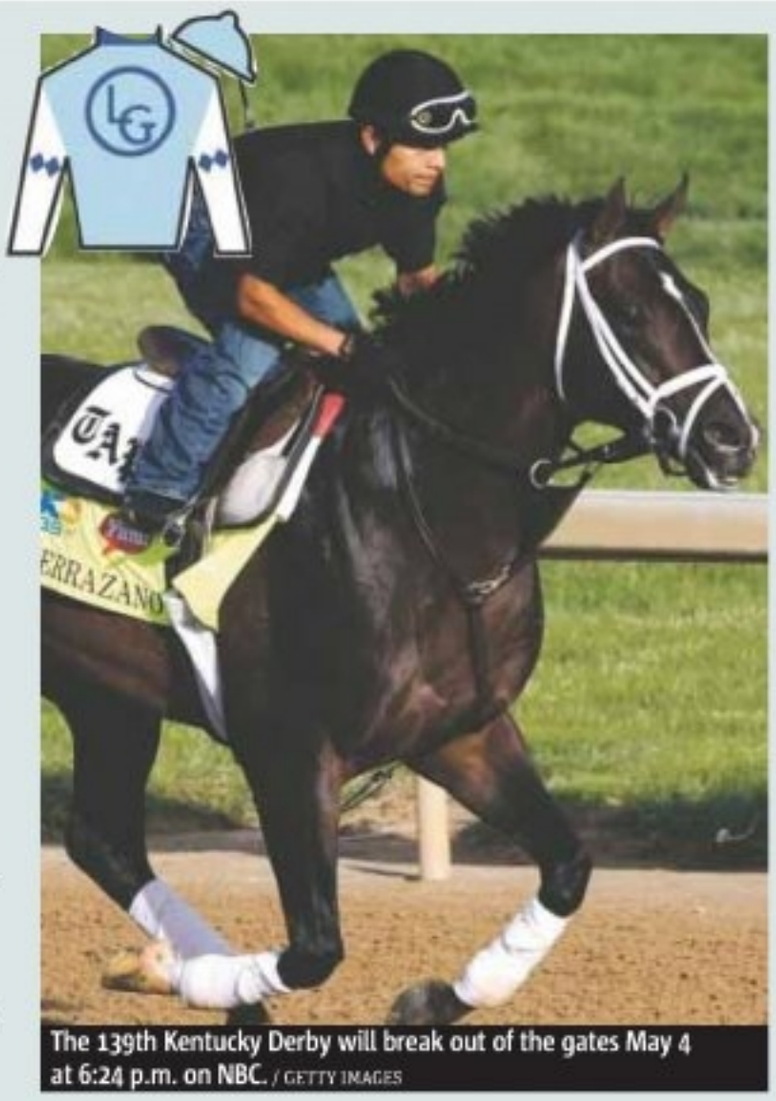
No. 14

OUR PICK

Verrazano (4/1) —

Jockey: John Velazquez
Trainer: Todd Pletcher

It will be the talented John Velazquez who will be on 4-1 Verrazano, a horse that has tasted nothing but success lately. In early April, Verrazano won the Grade I Wood Memorial at Aqueduct, running the 1 1/8 mile in a crisp 1:50.27. The only concern is that Verrazano never ran as a 2-year-old. But given the recent rides by Velazquez, Verrazano has to be in the pool for a Top 3 finish, and this horse has the ability to ride the race with enough quality to make a late push for the win.



The 139th Kentucky Derby will break out of the gates May 4 at 6:24 p.m. on NBC. / GETTY IMAGES

No. 1

Black Onyx (50/1) —

Jockey: Joe Bravo
Trainer: Kelly Breen

A bit of an unknown entering the Derby, Black Onyx has raced nowhere near this pedigree and it will show during the race against the top horses.

No. 2

Oxbow (33/1) —

Jockey: Gary Stevens
Trainer: D. Wayne Lukas

This horse has struggled at distance and can be overtaken late. He's likely not a player given this distance and the pace expected amongst the top contenders.

No. 3

Revolutionary (10/1) —

Jockey: Calvin Borel
Trainer: Todd Pletcher

Revolutionary may not have the goods at this level but a strong stretch run to win the Louisiana Derby in late March gave this horse a good enough test.

No. 4

Golden Soul (50/1) —

Jockey: Robby Albarado
Trainer: Dallas Stewart

A recent fourth at the Louisiana Derby casts doubt on whether this horse to canhang with the major movers at the Kentucky Derby. He shifts very wide and may tire late on a course longer than usual.

No. 5

Normandy Invasion (10/1) —

Jockey: Javier Castellano
Trainer: Chad Brown

He showed quality in running second in the recent Wood Memorial, but hasn't won against premier talent.

No. 6

Mylute (16/1) —

Jockey: Rosie Napravnik
Trainer: Tom Amoss

He came up short in the Louisiana Derby but under Napravnik he has a chance for a Top-3 finish in the Kentucky Derby. Napravnik is having a tremendous year.

No. 7

Giant Finish (50/1) —

Jockey: Jose L. Espinoza
Trainer: Anthony Dutrow

He has to run a perfect race to even show here at the Kentucky Derby, but Giant Finish is capable of a spectacular race despite being highly erratic over the course of his career. It's worth a watch.

No. 8

Goldencents (15/2) —

Jockey: Kevin Krigger
Trainer: Doug O'Neill

The horse has been running up and down, but rebounded from a fourth-place finish at the San Felipe with a win in the Santa Anita Derby.

No. 9

Overanalyze (14/1) —

Jockey: Rafael Bejarano
Trainer: Todd Pletcher

Trainer Todd Pletcher has another possibility out of Repole's stable and has beaten several in this field with wins at the Arkansas Derby and Remsen Stakes.

No. 10

Palace Malice (25/1) —

Jockey: Mike Smith
Trainer: Todd Pletcher

Smith is a legend among jockeys and won the Kentucky Derby with Giacomo in 2005, but this horse will likely make him a pauper and not a prince. This Pletcher horse is not considered one of his best.

No. 11

Lines of Battle (33/1) —

Jockey: Ryan Moore
Trainer: Aidan O'Brien

A win in March at the UAE Derby at 1 3/16 miles shows this British horse should be good enough to hang at this distance.

No. 12

Itsmyluckyday (12/1) —

Jockey: Elvis Trujillo
Trainer: Eddie Plesa Jr.

This grammatical nightmare is certainly a candidate to show in this race. A recent strong second at the Florida Derby means he isn't out of place.
